Wire Plus Electricity May Lead to Oil Truce Negotiators Hit New Blockade

"It's found water, why not oil?" asks 74-year-old James West, whose length of fencing wire assures him that there is a reservoir of the precious stuff on his Sidney property. With a "special" piece of this wire and electricity in your body, you, too, can wade with the best of them, Mr. West says. (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan).

Crossing his fingers for luck is Charles Armstrong, 73, Sidney, who hopes that his pickle jar will make him rich. An oil slick on top of the water in the jar may be just vegetable oil, but Mr. Armstrong will know next week, when it is analyzed by provincial government technicians. (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan).

U.N. Still Firmly Opposed To Wholesale Withdrawal

MUNSAN, Korea, Nov. 30 (Friday) (AP).—Allied truce team chiefs today told the Communists that the United Nations command cannot agree to withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

The Allied team remained firm on its position that any withdrawal even gradual as proposed by the Reds is a matter to be debated by the belligerent governments after an armistice.

The Communists in turn charged that an Allied proposal for inspection behind the lines would be "brazen interference" with their international affairs.

The Reds were locked with United Nations command delegations in fruitless debate for the fourth straight day. The chief Allied negotiator said afterwards that the truce talks had reached "impasse No. 2."

With the war in a state of some uncertainty since a provisional buffer zone was decided last Tuesday, early withdrawal of foreign troops again has become the core of the Communist position.

Bill Ross, Canadian Press staff writer, said Canadian troops in Korea have been ordered to carry on normal military operations except that no offensive infantry action is to be started.

High-level orders to govern front-line operations during the remainder of Korean armistice negotiations orders subject to much speculation and controversy during the last 48 hours—were clarified tonight.

In effect, the orders as they now stand are:

1. Operations will continue as before except that no offensive infantry action against the Chinese Reds will be initiated by Canadian troops.

2. The present forward defense positions will be maintained and improved.

3. All normal precautions will continue to be taken to safeguard forward positions.

4. Patrol activity will be confined to "aggressive reconnaissance" only.

5. Artillery, mortar and tank fire will be retaliatory, harassing, counter-battery or on enemy targets openly exposed.

6. Suspected enemy positions will not be engaged.

7. Retaliatory fire will be in the ratio of five to one; harassing and counter-battery fire will be in the ratio of one to one.

Arsenal Explodes In Korea

PUSAN, Korea, Nov. 30 (Friday) (AP).—A mighty blast destroyed the South Korean government arsenal here before dawn today and devastated a wide area.

United States army authorities said four civilians were known to be dead and six were severely injured.

Two blasts and a series of small explosions lasting nearly an hour destroyed the arsenal and in homes nearby and damaged 500 other dwellings.

Young Liberals Give Support to Johnson

"The Young Liberals will support Premier Byron Johnson at the next election," James J. Proudfoot, president of the B.C. Young Liberals, told the annual meeting of the Victoria Liberal Association last night.

Speaking on a report by the Young Liberals, Mr. Proudfoot said, "I ask members to remember Dec. 13, when we met in Vancouver. Previous press statements that we will not support the premier will be refuted at that meeting."

Provincial Education Minister W. T. Straith also addressed the meeting. He outlined industrial development in British Columbia and credited Premier Johnson with much of the planning for the billion dollars now being spent by industry in the province.

Speaking about Butte Lake, the minister said, "Before the damming of the lake is completed, new industries on the island will need more power than it can supply. Other power developments will have to be found."

"We are fortunate that Premier Johnson is first and foremost a business man," the minister added. "And yet some pipe-squawks still get up and shout against the kind of government the Coalition is giving us."

Captain D. J. Proudfoot, M.L.A., said the premier will not be the coming election decision, not the press or agitators. He'll make it when it suits him."

Thai Premier Overthrown

BANGKOK, Thailand, Nov. 30 (Friday) (AP).—A military junta last night ousted Thailand's government in a bloodless coup and abolished the constitution.

Most of Bangkok appeared unaware of the coup that overthrew Premier Phibunsonggram. The premier had been arguing with military forces against the move. It is reported he will return to his job when a new government is established.

(This was the first direct dispatch from Bangkok since the coup. Presumably censorship delayed the dispatch.)

East Asiatic Denied License

The provincial government has turned down an application by Prince Axel of Denmark for a forest management license.

The prince's East Asiatic Co. had sought a license covering 132,000 acres near Metcha Art on the island's west coast.

The government's decision can be appealed to the cabinet within 30 days.

Campbell River organizations protested the application because they feared it would curb development of the district. Two other logging companies operating in the area also opposed the bid.

East Asiatic had planned a big pulp and paper plant.

Nodding Wire Claimed Sign of Oil

By FRANK MEADE

Two Sidney septuagenarians have the town agog with rumors of oil.

Although Charles Armstrong, 73, and James West, 74, are inclined to belittle their feats with lengths of wire, which they hope have tapped an oil reservoir, they find that a lot more people stop them on the street than ever before.

"Do you think there's really oil?" is the question that emerges from a polite conversational meander through weather, political, and other topics.

"It could be just vegetable oil, but I'm going to have a sample analyzed next week," says Mr. Armstrong.

"I don't think my divining wire would act up that way if there was only vegetable oil underneath," claims Mr. West.

The Weiler Avenue residents gave demonstrations of how there might be a potential Leaky right underneath their living rooms.

Mr. Armstrong couldn't find a length of copper wire, with which he usually works, but a watch attached to a cord started swinging from his hand.

He wasn't prodding the pendulum, he hastened to explain,

"It's only certain people who it will work for."

Mr. West, who is inclined to treat the whole thing as a jolly way to putter, came up with a length of fencing wire, about five feet long.

Holding it rigidly in the centre of his living room, he watched it nod wildly.

It wouldn't work for Mrs. West, photographer Jim Ryan, or my self.

"You have to have electricity in your body," explained Mr. West.

"It has to be just any old piece of wire, either."

"It has to have certain properties," Mr. West said.

Mr. Armstrong's oil sample, which he intends to have analyzed, consists of a jar of water with a clear oil deposit on top.

He owns the one-and-one-half acres upon which his house stands.

He said he found a well for his neighbor, P. Brethour, with his copper divining wand, and four months ago, Mr. Brethour noticed an oil slick on the top of the water.

That started the "oil boom."

Mr. Armstrong says he has divined at least two dozen water wells in the vicinity.

Oil, he thinks can be found between 300 and 400 feet under the surface near any of these wells.

Mr. West has spoken to Standard Oil of New Jersey officials who, he says, have promised a survey as soon as machinery is available.

Meanwhile, other Sidney residents are openly skeptical, but privately wondering whether they own the mineral rights to their land.

"I've had more people ask me that question," said a Sidney store keeper.

A fish merchant said: "I don't think they have anything—but, still, you never know."

Mrs. A. B. Smith, who lives on Weiler Avenue, hopes her neighbors have struck oil.

"Sidney needs a boom," she said.

Syrian Army Chief Jails New Premier, Backers

DAMASCUS, Syria, Nov. 29 (AP).—Syria's new pro-Russian premier and all his ministers were arrested today in a swift, bloodless military coup by Lieut. Col. Adib Shishkeli, a power behind the scenes since 1949.

Old rivalries were apparent between the dominant Populist party and the army. Shishkeli directs as chief of staff.

The Syrian strong man never gave Populist Marout Dwalibi, advocate of closer Arab-Russian ties, a chance to get set as successor to pro-Western Premier Hassan El Hakeem, a backer of the projected Middle-East defense command, who resigned Nov. 10.

Less than 24 hours after Dwalibi succeeded in forming a coalition cabinet with the backing of his Populists, independents and the Moslem Brotherhood, the soldiers struck.

Other Populist leaders and independent supporters of parliament supporting their policy also were rounded up. Populist newspapers were reported suspended.

Rev. Harold W. Borbauer, 29, of Wilbur, Wash., his feet half frozen and cut, stumbled into a logging camp and told of his friends' plight. Rev. Borbauer received two broken ribs and an injured left arm during the crash late Wednesday in the rugged Lost Lake country near Snoqualmie Pass.

Left on the trail were pilot Paul Gemberling, Spokane contractor, and Harold Lanphere, a parishioner of Rev. Borbauer's at Wilbur.

Tonight, a state patrol rescue party reported it had reached both men and they were "travelling cases." A McChord air force base Weasel (rescue vehicle) was immediately dispatched to the scene.

New Well To Start In North

A new Peace River oil well will "spud in" within two or three days, it was announced yesterday by Lands and Forests Minister K. T. Kenney.

It is the second new well to be started since a Pacific Petroleum crew hit oil near Fort St. John, Oct. 31.

No report on production tests of the discovery well—Peace River Allied Fort St. John No. 1—has been received yet, Mr. Kenney said.

Another new well, Tenaka No. 1, is drilling far to the north of the Fort St. John field.

Government Department To Appeal on Butte Lake

The decision to dam Butte Lake will be appealed by the attorney-general's department, it was announced yesterday.

British Columbia conservationists, who fought the B.C. Power Commission's application to dam the lake, will be allowed to re-state their objections.

The news was heartening for conservationists, who had feared they would have no further voice in the Butte battle.

Education Minister W. T. Straith, acting attorney-general, said Attorney General Gordon Wismer had not promised conservationists they would be able to appeal the decision.

"It's obvious that Mr. Wismer's statement was misunderstood," Mr. Straith said. "A 1949 amendment to the Water Act specifies that appeals may be made only by the deputy attorney-general, the deputy minister of agriculture or the deputy minister of fisheries."

"Mr. Wismer did undertake that one of these three deputies would appeal the decision. He also said that objectors would be allowed to appear and state their case."

Mr. Straith said the appeal is now being prepared in the attorney-general's department, and that it will be filed before the Dec. 7 deadline.

Chinese Loses Extortion Fears

VANCOUVER, Nov. 29 (CP).—A Vancouver Chinese today told of fruitless attempts to keep his relatives in China alive.

Pang Moek, 81-year-old proprietor of a downtown hotel, told how he no longer is afraid to tell his story of Communist extortion.

His last surviving relatives in China had been wiped out.

His cousin, and his wife had committed suicide and their four children had disappeared. One son escaped to Hong Kong.

His cousin had returned to Lung To in Kwantung Province in China four years ago.

"When he went back he took $25,000 in U.S. money. He bought a 100-acre farm," Pang said.

The Red Army started extorting money from his cousin three years ago, he said. Relatives in Honolulu collected $335 to save him then.

After that demands became regular.

"They dreamed up fines and special taxes—always ordering him to get money from America or go to jail. They knew he had many relatives."

The last letter from his cousin said:

"My cash and possessions are gone, my ways are blocked. If you can save me please help me."

"I always sent every bit I could and more," Pang said.

"We heard through a Chinese newspaper published in Honolulu my cousin and his wife had disappeared at the same time. They will be dead."

The son who escaped informed the newspaper.

Sick Mariners' Clinic Seriously Considered Here

By RAY WORMALD

Establishment in Victoria of a sick mariners' clinic—a form of marine hospital—is now being given serious consideration it was learned yesterday.

Plans for the project are now complete, and it is presumed that official endorsement from Ottawa is being awaited.

The clinic would be established in the Canadian Immigration Building in the Ogden Point dock area. Plans call for seven one-bed wards and facilities to care for up to 25 or 30 "contacts"—men believed to have been exposed to some form of communicable disease.

Dr. R. B. Jenkins, chief medical officer for the local ship quarantine station, would be in charge of the clinic, assisted by Dr. G. L. Sparks.

Establishment of the clinic would require considerable structural changes in the Immigration Building.

No additions to the building are being planned.

Providing official sanction is given the project, it should be ready for operation by early next summer.

At the new clinic mariners would undergo any medical examination required. Minor cases would receive immediate attention there, and seriously ill men would be sent to city hospitals.

Founding of the sick mariners' clinic would be one of many results following completion of Victoria's new Post Office. All facilities and personnel of the Quarantine Station, now at William Head, are to move into the new area.

present Canadian Immigration building.

The immigration personnel are to move into the old Post Office building to share the premises with Customs and Excise offices. Department of National Defense is taking over the William Head area.

American Army's "Shoeless Hillbilly" Identified as Ontario Forest Ranger

SUDBURY, Ont., Nov. 29 (CP).—The "shoeless hillbilly" who hoaxed the United States army recently was Peter Ernest John Grainger, a 25-year-old northern Ontario forest ranger.

Friends identified him from a newspaper photograph of the man who claimed to have wandered into the U.S. army from the remote mountains of New Mexico.

The photograph showed a clear picture of a man holding a rifle with the index finger of the left hand missing. Grainger has this defect.

November 19 the U.S. army reported that the recruit, who gave the name of Peter Grainger and told a strange story of an upbringing remote from civilization, had disappeared.

According to press reports, Grainger told recruiting officers at San Antonio, Texas, Nov. 3, that he was the son of a New Mexico prospector and had decided to enlist "after paw died."

He later disappeared, but showed up walking along the highway about 17 miles west of here. He was held by provincial police.

Dr. Tom Dixon, psychiatrist at the mental health clinic here, examined Grainger and recommended sending him to Sunnybrook military hospital at Toronto for treatment of a head injury suffered in the Second World War.

He left his job here Oct. 9 for a medical examination in North Bay in connection with his army service. He was to return to work the following day but did not turn up.

Brought into court today, Grainger was charged with vagrancy and remanded a week.

ALLABOARD

By G. E. Mortimore

Recently I made the grievous mistake in this column of blaming the city for the lack of benches in Victoria. This is an apology.

The fact is that the city has about 100 benches in the city, but they are not placed where they should be.

Power to allow benches to be placed beside the street. It now has the power to place benches beside bus stops only, by courtesy of the provincial legislature.

Why? Because Victoria doesn't own its streets. The streets of Victoria are owned by the Crown, as represented by the government of British Columbia.

So are the streets of all municipalities in B.C., except Vancouver, which operates under a private charter. Vancouver owns its streets.

To Victoria and all other cities and municipalities which operate under the Municipal Act, the province delegates possession of streets providing the city maintains the streets and satisfies certain other conditions.

For some time Victoria has campaigned for the right to place benches. Finally this city secured the support of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at its Nelson convention for this measure. (The U.B.C.M. however, refused backing to Victoria's demand for certain other powers.)

The legislature then amended the Municipal Act to allow the cities to have benches made and placed at bus stops. But as far as I can find out, the city still has no power to let firms or clubs set down benches with advertising messages on them. (This is open to dispute, perhaps.)

Anyway, Victoria's city fathers are in no way to blame for the lack of benches here. I conveyed the impression that they were to blame, because I was hasty and foolish enough to accept second-hand information. In my own defense I plead that I seldom fail to check such things. But this time I did fail.

So here I am confessing the error like a Communist recanting of heresy, with this difference: Nobody held a gun to my head. In fact nobody made me confess at all. I'm happy to do it. The confession makes me feel snug and righteous, like a tramp who has just taken a bath.

Nevertheless I obstinately maintain that Victoria needs benches, and something should have been done about it long ago for the sake of the old people who have nowhere to rest their tired bones when they are tramping about the town. Many of them phoned to endorse the last word about the subject in this space, mistaken though it was in detail.

Why should cities and municipalities not have the right to allow benches with advertising messages upon them? I can't think of a more acceptable kind of commercial, and the cities would be able to save themselves some money by the practice.

Some people may object that if you allow one kind of advertising beside the street, you must allow another kind. But this is not necessarily true. As far as I can see, advertising could easily enough be confined by law to benches, and the messages themselves could be limited to any reasonably small size.

All this raises the question of a city charter for Victoria. One day—perhaps in this election campaign—a candidate for civic office will promise to take steps toward getting one. And if this comes about, Victoria may eventually own her streets and possess the right to place benches wherever they are needed.

Sailor, on "Holiday," Fought Ashore

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP)—Navy and army officials today pieced together the story of a Winnipeg sailor who took a "holiday" from his ship and fought with Canadian infantry troops in Korea for a month.

The sailor, Able Seaman Jack Duff, 21, was in a hospital ship in Japan when he "jumped" it Sept. 12 and hitch-hiked an airlift ride to Korea.

Duff made his way to the front lines, picking up bits of clothing on the way, until he reached the Royal Canadian Regiment.

For a time the Canadians absorbed Duff into their unit, and tipped him off when a patrol was scheduled. While in action Duff kept out of sight of the officers.

Then Duff took his story to the unit chaplain who informed the adjutant. The Provost Corps sent him back to Japan.

Back aboard H.M.C.S. Cayuga, the navy took a dim view of the adventure.

"Detention while on active service," and sentenced to 30 days' detention and loss of 50 days' pay.

In Winnipeg, Duff's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Duff, told the youth's story of the escapade as related in a letter to a girl friend.

Included was an excerpt from a letter, said to have been written by Duff to his girl friend, in which he was quoted as saying: "His actions during this period are commendable. He showed great courage and the spirit of adventure, which is desirable in Canada's armed forces. May the above report be considered in mitigation of any punishment awarded this seaman."

In Duff's story, he told how he started out with 110 yen (35 cents) in his pocket, bought a ticket to an American airbase, hitch-hiked an airlift to Korea, and got a ride with an American admiral to Seoul where

C.P.R. Rate Application Held Less Than Needed

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP).—A Michigan, testified $57,450,000 would be a reasonable figure for the C.P.R. to earn to cover dividends, fixed charges and surplus. In the rate application, the company is seeking $51,000,000.

The railways contend that, at current freight rates, the Canadian Pacific will fall short of meeting the increased investment. They are asking for a general 10 per cent increase in rates.

Crew Behind Bogus Doctor

WINNIPEG, Nov. 29 (CP).—The navy's bogus doctor, Ferdinand Demara Jr., alias Joseph Cyr, was not fraud to the men of the ship in which he served, a Winnipeg sailor said.

"The officers and men of the Cayuga are 100 per cent behind him," said Al Jack Deakin.

Demara had been acclaimed in the navy's own press releases for a "brilliant" series of operations while serving aboard the destroyer Cayuga in Korean waters as a surgeon lieutenant. Later, he was discharged for misconduct when it was learned that he was not Dr. Joseph Cyr of Edmondston, N.B., as he claimed, but Ferdinand Demara Jr., formerly of Lawrence, Mass.

"If he isn't a doctor, he should be," said Al Deakin.

"Nobody's opinion of him has changed. There have been no casualties on the Cayuga, but he operated on a lot of South Koreans and they respected him highly."

Oddities

LOWESTOFT, Eng., Nov. 29 (Reuters).—A woman was accused in court yesterday of dosing her husband's food with poison from a home permanent wave lotion every week and so she could sneak out for dates while he was sick.

Mrs. Margaret Cossey, 39, faces four charges of poisoning.

The prosecution stated that she would mix the hair chemical with her husband's tea on Friday night and Saturday morning. This would make him sick by Saturday night and keep him home while she went out. He would recover by Monday in time to go to work.

Police said she confessed. Her husband said he had gained seven pounds and had not been sick once since his wife had been in jail.

Vancouver Admits Census Correct

VANCOUVER, Nov. 29 (CP).—Red-faced civic officials today admitted the Dominion census figure of 345,000 for Vancouver was at least close to the truth.

Assessment commissioner Don McQueen had earlier claimed he would stand by his figure of 400,000. Wednesday he scaled down his estimate by 14,000 to 385,000.

VANCOUVER, Nov. 29 (CP).—Albert E. Forshaw, wealthy former bookmaker, Wednesday put the "finger" on Pete Loretto and Robert S. Black, two of the 34 persons charged before Magistrate W. W. B. McInnes in Vancouver's bookmaking conspiracy hearing.

Forshaw admitted operating bookmaking parlors in the years 1944 through 1946.

Only Small Dinner Party For Churchill Birthday

LONDON, Nov. 29 (Reuters).—Prime Minister Winston Churchill had a problem tonight. He is 77 Friday, and doesn't care. But what will he get for his birthday?

On one anniversary an ardent admirer sent him a lion and most years a live animal of some sort turns up. If it wasn't for the zoo, Britain's political grandfather would be hip-deep in them by now.

There is one surprise for him, a special birthday cake he's not supposed to know about.

Whatever there is, as always, there'll be quantities of cigars. Mr. Churchill never passes them up.

Greetings will run into thousands, from all over the world. They started flooding in tonight, telegrams, letters, phone calls.

But the only concession to the occasion Mr. Churchill himself plans is a small family dinner party at 10 Downing Street.

It will be a simple meal, including the prime minister's favorite dessert, caramel custard. Guests will include Mr. Churchill's daughters, Diana and Mary, and their husbands.

The whole of Britain will be wishing Mr. Churchill many happy returns and, if the old man looks in on parliament, the

Rail Bill Passes Committee of Whole

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP).—The Commons tonight virtually completed passage of the government's legislation dealing with national freight-rate equalization and secondary rail problems.

The bill received committee-of-the-whole approval and now awaits third and final reading. It was passed with amendments tacked on by the special committee on rail legislation, a major feature of which was a clause largely exempting the low-laid Maritimes-Newfoundland region from equalization.

The two subsidiary measures got third and final reading tonight. These provide:

Tightening of the 1933 C.N.R.-C.P.R. Co-Operation Act ordering the railways to undertake joint economies.

British Trade Union Membership Drops

LONDON, Nov. 29 (Reuters).—About 9,235,000 workers were members of British trade unions at the end of 1950, the official ministry of labor gazette reported Wednesday. The figure is about 30,000 lower than that of 1949, and 80,000 less than at the end of 1948.

Man Missing From Warship

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP).—Navy headquarters today reported that able seaman Robin Jensen Skayberg, 20, of Calgary, is missing at sea, presumably lost overboard, from H.M.C.S. Athabaskan during naval operations in the Korean theatre.

Able seaman Skayberg's next-of-kin is listed as his father, F. Skayberg of Calgary.

AB. Skayberg, who joined the navy in April, 1949, is the third man to be lost from Canadian ships on Korean service. AB. Vince Laska of Victoria, a crew member of H.M.C.S. Cayuga, was accidentally drowned last December 4. A month later, ordinary seaman Leon A. Gauthier of Lakeview, Ont., was lost overboard.

Better Wharf Space Needed

ANNOUNCEMENT that the Ss. Maquinna will supplement the curtailed ferry service among the Gulf Islands when the Princess Elaine replaces the Princess Mary next month makes the situation a little better for the island settlers than it had appeared earlier. With the exception of Ganges and Port Washington connections, however, the service will still be far inferior to that provided by the Mary.

Instead of calls by the Mary several times a week, most of the islands, including some which have been extensively developed in recent years, will be visited by the Maquinna only once in eight days. Besides being a severe setback to tourist trade, now an important factor to the islands, this reduction would have serious effects the year around, especially to the movement of perishable produce and supplies.

The insufficiency at all save Ganges and Port Washington of wharf accommodation for the Elaine, a much larger ship than either the Mary or Maquinna, is the reason for the reduction in service. It is one which cannot be gainsaid, since many of the federal government wharves among the islands are scarcely big enough for even the Mary's safe operation. Apparently the company would be willing to arrange schedules at least equal to if not better than those provided by the Mary if suitable wharves were constructed, and that is a prospect which gives the island communities something hopeful to work on.

Vancouver Island and mainland chambers of commerce and boards of trade undoubtedly will give their full support to representations to the Dominion government for extension and improvement of wharf accommodation. The policy of reducing capital expenditures on federal wharves and port facilities announced by the government some time ago certainly should not be applied too rigidly in a case such as this, in which the welfare and livelihood of whole communities is owed to adequate and dependable water transport.

Smallwood Regime Returned

NEWFOUNDLAND'S slow-paced general election, which will not be over until next July, had progressed far enough yesterday to give the Smallwood Liberal administration 18 confirmed seats in the new legislature of 28; with the possibility, but not the assurance, of 24 seats when the whole affair is wound up. In voting already recorded the Liberals picked up two seats from Progressive Conservatives, another from the former chamber's sole Independent and won four acclamations. Up to the present Progressive Conservatives have been elected in three constituencies and are leading in a fourth. Five seats remain at issue, one deferred and four not finally reported. The Labrador section of the general election cannot take place until next summer, the earliest that ballot boxes can be taken into the isolated posts concerned.

Premier Joseph Smallwood took office, with considerable federal help, at the first general election in May, 1949, after Newfoundland had joined Confederation in Canada. Liberals then held 22 seats of the 28-seat assembly, Progressive Conservatives four, and an Independent one seat. Although the administration's term would not have expired until 1953, Mr. Smallwood asked for the dissolution of the former House on a policy issue, the government's program of 50 per cent backing for new industrial capital investment in the province. Progressive Conservatives, without a provincial leader, opposed this policy, but apparently did not attempt to assume the reins of office in the general election. So, at least, Mr. Gordon Higgins, Progressive Conservative organizer there, has said.

The upshot of the general election, even with its suspended completion, is that the re-elected Smallwood regime now claims a public mandate to go ahead with its industrial expansion program. Incidentally, it is assured of four more years in office, while the Progressive Conservatives will remain the official Opposition.

Ducks and Drakes in Korea

THE queer cease-fire-that-isn't-a-peace-treaty business in Korea suggests either that too many cooks are spoiling the broth or that one half of the Allied front doesn't know what the other is doing. This isn't the first time there have been doubts about the direction of the U.N. campaign there. Numerous other incidents in the past, unrelated to armistice negotiations, indicate that the various American commands, which run the war for the U.N., lack the coherence and unity of thought and action that is desirable for successful prosecution of any campaign.

One thing is certain. Front-line troops do not stop fighting without orders. Some kind of instruction from a higher level must have reached the forward formations, else there would have been no departure from the norm. Nor is it credible that groups of the enemy would start playing volley ball in full view of Allied forces unless some understanding about a cease-fire had been reached.

The hopes raised by early reports of this now denied cease-fire are not necessarily dampened for good, however. It seems apparent that some steps really are being accomplished towards this end, although someone has boggled the situation meantime. Perhaps the next time the Eighth Army Command issues a directive it will be in terms unmistakably clear and not capable of any misinterpretation. Far too many American officers of one kind or another in Korea have been issuing orders and statements for comfort, right from the start of the campaign. There is a dubious quality about American control of the U.N. war direction that is not impressive.

POLL TAX

Sir.—Mr. Chad Smith's forthright declaration makes his position perfectly clear to voters. He has given no answer to my statement of fact, that the greatly increased taxes now levied on city houses, plus the steep hike in the additional tax on all rented rooms, have been passed on to the unfortunate tenants. At least I haven't heard of any landlords going broke.

Why did Vancouver and many other cities abolish this unfair impost?

Royal Oak, B.C.

JOHN KENNY,

RETAIL TRADING

Sir.—A good many businesses and municipalities are facing further increased demands for salaries and wages.

One of the matters which your readers must be interested in knowing is surely the question as to who really pays for any hotel which may be made, who benefits and who suffers.

I notice that the average net profit margin in cents per sales dollar of leading retail trade corporations in the United States of America for an 18-year period was 3.8 per cent. It is pretty obvious any hotel in salaries or wages would be very small if it had to be taken out of that average.

Food is about the largest item in any family budget and also about the most important. So the average profit in that branch is particularly interesting. It may surprise most housewives to find that the 18-year average profit from the sales dollar in the leading retail food chains was only 1.4 per cent.

WATERSHED LOGGING

Sir.—Your philosophy regarding watershed management, as expounded in the editorial of November 17, should not be allowed to pass unchallenged. It infers that logging is unthinkable in a watershed forest. This view is not supported by the results of logging under good forest management in numerous watershed areas on this continent and in Europe.

The assertion that the removal of mature timber may reduce annual precipitation in the Sooke district is equally unfounded. It would be interesting to know of any instance in North America where the presence or absence of trees has influenced annual rainfall to a measurable extent. It is incontestable, however, that trees do influence the rate of flow and quality of surface and subsurface water which becomes available for domestic or other use in a watershed area.

The water board's plan for the managed harvesting of mature timber in the Victoria watershed is in line with the principles of soil and water conservation, and is immeasurably more sound than a laissez-faire policy which ignores the present condition and age of forest cover.

Present areas of mature timber must be systematically replaced by second growth, and it has yet to be shown that second growth stands provide poorer soil cover than old growth stands. The replacement can only be effected by the application of forest management principles in the Victoria watershed, which is certainly a sufficiently large unit for the practice of forest management.

We should wish success to a plan for appropriate logging in our watershed forest, rather than deny it short sightedly. R. M. MALCOLM, 1012 Oliphant Street, Victoria, B.C.

PRICE FIXING

Sir.—Some of the previous arguments brought before the committee studying fixed price practices by the manufacturers, show how "hard up" they are trying to prove that they are justified in interfering with our free enterprise system. They say that fixed price articles are actually selling for less than those which are not fixed. The only sensible comparison is to take like articles and compare one with the other and not try to compare a refrigerator with clothing or food. When comparing refrigerator prices with 1939, they have gone up as much or more as any other commodity, and the best comparison to make would be with Seattle prices, where even higher wages are paid but fixed prices are illegal. The Canadian manufacturer takes full advantage of the high customs tariffs to charge the Canadian people, and yet they tell the Ottawa committee they are only just surviving. High fixed prices are certainly not the answer to unemployment.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

WHEN I was across the border recently I had the opportunity to sample television, and, deliberately, I took it. I had heard so much about TV, had glimpsed it in store windows here, and wanted to test my reaction.

So, for what I daresay amounted in all to about six hours, I sat slumped in an easy chair, my eyes glued to this latest demonstration of mechanical magic.

I gather that TV is sweeping—or about to sweep, for if the price of a set doesn't come down its onward progress will be arrested—the North American continent.

This, of course, is important, since it implies a great social change. The radio has diverted human habit to no mean extent, and altered the human mind a lot as well—making it a sponge that soaks up all kinds of vague impressions—and television threatens to have its own particular impact.

For instance I read a piece a while back that suggested that TV listeners would become "lounge-lizards," their spines curved to fit the cushions that enabled them to gaze at the screen for hours on end. I never sat at any one sitting long enough to run this risk, but it could happen I suppose. The hypnotic quality of television is such, I've read, that owners of sets rush home of an evening bent on nothing else but the mesmerism of the view-screen.

So it could easily cause other diversions to be discarded.

Personally I didn't find TV anything to sing out loud about. Some of the programs I thought so fatuous it took determination to sit through them. And as for the commercials—well, they just magnify the faults of radio sponsors a thousandfold. And it's not so easy to close your eyes as your ears, psychologically speaking.

Where I was the reception was excellent, with none of the shivers I've noted on local screens, but for my part the screens will never be big enough; they're so small they make puppets of the actors, and yet few women will want to give up the whole living-room wall to a TV set, supposing they keep getting bigger, as no doubt they will.

I gathered from some of the shows I watched that movies are made specially for television screening and inept things they were that I saw—just as radio programs are recorded for later broadcasting. Television is not, as its original inventors claimed, a device for showing events currently happening. It does that, too, but as a by-product.

Primarily, then, it's a variation in miniature of the screen, stage and radio, combining something of the elements of all these three mediums of expression. It will be, I don't doubt at all, tremendously fascinating for lots of people, although I for one wouldn't want to spend too many nights with it. Unlike radio, which can be listened to while a person does other things, TV is a tyrant that compels either attention or complete oblivion.

It will grow up, technically I mean, just as radio has done. The TV set of the future will bear almost relation to existing types, which means that this social revolution is in its infancy yet. I wish I could think the programs would grow up in like proportion, but I'm afraid I can't.

Come to think of it, you know, entertainment per se hasn't changed at all throughout the years. Music is still music, comedians are still comedians, dancers are still dancers—and what they keep on doing really varies very little from one generation to another. It's the method of presentation that alters—when it does alter.

Television is the latest method. Living as I do in 1951 it intrigues me as do most current happenings, so that I wish its development well, and the owners of TV sets as many happy evenings as they can get, if TV is their bent. For myself I doubt that I'll ever become a television addict. Time is too precious.

Britain Makes Films for Children

By JEAN DE HARIVÉL, in Unesco Features

IN Great Britain, young people look forward to Saturday mornings because of the special film matinees that are arranged for them in cinemas all over the country. Among the thousands who flock to these special shows there are some who, without realizing it, are helping British film-makers to plan the production of "ideal" children's films.

In the semi-darkness of a cinema a team of experts, under the direction of Miss Mary Field, leading British authority on children's films, may be noting and recording the spontaneous reactions of a group of children. Later, when these observations have been analyzed, they will be an invaluable guide to the producers of specialized films for children.

Both educational authorities and film-makers agree the children should see films that have been specially produced for them, but such films are generally unprofitable and relatively few of them were produced.

Recently, however, four British cinema associations joined forces and founded a company called "Children's Foundation Films Ltd."

A non-profit-making concern (any profits will be ploughed back into production), this company will be financed from a specially created British film production fund. It will produce children's films and ensure for them the widest possible distribution.

Makers of children's films enjoy one special advantage over producers of most films for adults, because many of their pictures can be shown again and again—at approximately three-year intervals—to new audiences, as hundreds of thousands of children move into the appropriate age groups.

Research has shown conclusively that children need special films. Even when scenes which might shock or frighten children have been cut from adult films, their use has never been satisfactory, though the subject or plot may be suitable, because they just fail to hold the interest of young children.

While the children's eyes may follow the action, their attention is not held by the dialogue. Still more important, they lose track of the "who's who" among the screen characters and cannot identify themselves with those characters. Even a child in an adult film is not a "child's child." He is the creation of an adult brain and is intended to be seen through the eyes of adults. If the characters of a film are not real to a child, the film will have no impact on him.

Mary Field and her team of film-makers first observed such reactions by sitting among children during film shows to find out what sort of things children liked or disliked in films.

The results were useful but not conclusive, because they were not recorded and depended on the observation, memory and judgment of different observers. Questionnaires were tried out, but were not successful. Film viewing is a communal activity and once the child has left the cinema his reactions are no longer spontaneous—especially when he is faced with paper and pen.

Some more direct approach had to be used—and if possible during the actual performance when children are uninhibited, reacting naturally to what they see and hear.

A great deal can be learnt from the noises children make. There are "good" and "bad" noises—from a producer's point of view. So the sounds made by the audience were recorded. Afterward the producer and his team listened to these sounds, co-ordinated with the sound track of the film. This method, however, did not take into account the "picture" part of the picture—nor did it show the physical reactions of the children.

This led to a new method of development by Mary Field and her colleagues. Photographs were taken of a small group of children, so as to follow not only their facial reactions, but also the movements of their hands, legs and feet, at certain pre-determined times during the run of the film. These photographs were then placed opposite stills of the relevant scenes from the film and the expressions and attitudes of the children closely studied. After a little experience of this type of comparative study, film producers were able to interpret the emotions of the children with surprising accuracy. Infra-red plates are now being used so that pictures can be taken in darkness, without distracting the children.

Through these studies, film producers found the most popular type of film is the comedy adventure with plenty of excitement and laughter. Children do not object to "good clean" fighting in a film, provided it is not excessively violent and that it is photographed at a distance. The one thing which terrifies a child is a close shot—looming up on the screen of violent action.

The "these" theme is always acceptable. Hence the popularity of cowboy films. Children's enough children seem to be able to relax during a chase. Children prefer action to dialogue, which bores them if the script writer supplies all the dialogue which would be considered necessary in an adult picture. This does not by any means exclude all dialogue.

Self identification is perhaps the most important single factor in children's films (it also plays a very important part in adult films). The child must be able to imagine the characters and to see himself in one of the parts.

Because of the importance of this factor, the script-writer must always try to have both girls and boys in the story. Children must see genuine people on the screen and be told a realistic story. They will immediately detect a "phony." They are ruthless little critics and cannot be fooled.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

SHORTLY after the first war, some of my more mechanically-gifted friends took up a silly new gadget that came along, called radio. They had odd little boxes, to which earphones were attached. And we were invited over to sit around the dining-room table, taking turns at putting on the headphones, to listen to faint, far music, and voices squealing. All the way across the city, those sounds came! And not long after, all the way from New York! "Through the air! No wires. Can you beat it?"

My friends prophesied great things for radio. They declared it would become a great industry. When perfected, everybody would have a radio in the home. There would be concerts. And speeches by great men. The news would be broadcast at any hour of the day. You wouldn't have to sit waiting for a paper boy.

Personally, I was not impressed, and I uttered the opinion that radio was a passing fad. Within two or three years, my friends used to convince me another by asking me importantly if, in my opinion, radio was here to stay. Well, by gum, here I am, 30 years later, going around trying to find my old friends to ask them if, in their opinion, radio is here to stay?

With television soon within reach of all, radio will likely be retired to some commercial function, and then what? Is the aeroplane here to stay? Probably not. There is every reason to suppose that something as far ahead of aircraft as television is ahead of the crystal set, is well on the way into men's perception.

Nothing is really here to stay. Due to the insatiable combination of greed and curiosity in human nature, everything on earth has to keep moving.

Through Colonist Files

25 YEARS AGO—Prince George, youngest son of the King and Queen, spent nearly two hours in Victoria yesterday, en route from China to spend Christmas at home.

50 YEARS AGO—The organization in Victoria of a tourist association to make the attractions of the city better known is now a certainty. There is an excellent field in which such an association can work.

85 YEARS AGO—A memorial expressing the confidence of the Islanders in the ability, integrity and judgment of Mr. Justice Needham, and asking that he be appointed chief justice of the colony, was circulated yesterday and signed by nearly everybody.

City Plans New Tender Procedure

A new city council procedure bylaw with references to tenders will give the city manager authority to open tenders in private, accompanied by the department head concerned and the purchasing agent.

The old and generally-practiced procedure regarding tenders is for the city clerk or committee head to open them in the presence of a committee or council, and the press.

After perusal by the purchasing agent, the opened tenders will then be submitted to the committee concerned for recommendation to council.

The new bylaw received the approval of the finance committee yesterday and will go to council at the next meeting.

Under the new bylaw all tenders must be accompanied by a certified check or cash deposit for five per cent of the contract price stated in the tender.

One section of the bylaw states that in cases where a tenderer withdraws his tender before the committee and council have finally awarded the contract, the deposit shall be forfeited.

The finance committee agreed that the new bylaw would be "a great improvement over the old system."

One bird at the fifth annual dressed turkey show held at National Motors yesterday weighed 26½ pounds, but a slim youngling of only 19 pounds took top honors. More than 218 were entered.

The Christmas window-dressing stream was opened by Agriculture Minister H. R. Bowman. Grand champion went to a 19-pound hen bird owned by L. Marshall of Sidney. Grand champion male was won by C. E. Whitney-Griffiths of Metcalfe. He also won the highest individual aggregate and reserve grand champion.

A. F. Cade of Duncan won the Beltsville white class; Mrs. E. Ross of Wellington took the pair female class; C. McCulloch of Langford took the pair males and the all-over variety; Box male and Box female classes were won by Mr. Marshall, I. Wicklund of Ladysmith won the Box Beltsville whites.

Judges for the show were Dave Brown of Canada Marketing Service, G. L. Landon of the poultry commission and Maurice Randall, poultry inspector.

At the auction held following the opening, the 19-pound grand champion brought $16. Grand reserve champion, weighing 32½ pounds brought $19. In former years the top champions have brought as much as $10 a pound.

Maquinna to Make Run To Smaller Gulf Ports

Ss. Princess Elaine will succeed the Princess Mary on the Gulf Islands service Dec. 13. She will make three trips weekly to Port Washington, in North Pender Island and Ranges on Salt Spring Island.

The Elaine's service will be before she calls there, however, major repairs will be necessary to wharf facilities of that port. The Sidney wharf is reportedly in such a state of disrepair now that even smaller ferries of Washington State Ferries may not be able to call there next.

Chambers of Commerce of both Victoria and Sidney have been pressing for this work for the past several months.

The Elaine, largest C.P.R. vessel ever placed on the Gulf Islands run, will leave Vancouver each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 8:30 a.m., returning to the mainland port at 5:30 p.m. on those days.

On Wednesdays, Fridays and Sundays she will leave Vancouver on a day service to and from Powell River and Blubber Bay.

It has been indicated the Elaine may make Sidney a port of call during summer months.

Aorangi to Dock At 6.30 Tonight

The Canadian-Australian Line's M.V. Aorangi will reach Ogden Point docks at 6.30 p.m. today, C.P.R. officials report. After discharging freight and a few passengers here she will go on to Vancouver. Earlier it was expected she would arrive here at 7.30 p.m.

His driver's license was also suspended and a report made to the motor vehicle branch.

John G. Blair, 2051 Granite, was fined $30 for driving without a current driver's license.

Attention has been given to the development of our staff training facilities and emphasis placed on the improvement of our service to the general public. Our continued expansion offers many opportunities for promotion to young men willing to devote their talents and energy to the service of the Bank. We have many examples to illustrate the promising future awaiting young men in the service of the Bank. In addition, we would be doing any young man a service in bringing these facts to his attention, as well as furthering the interests of the Bank. I welcome this opportunity to commend the efficiency and conscientious hard work of the members of the staff who have made possible the results shown by the Statement. I am proud of our staff and thank them for their loyalty and devotion to duty during the past year.

Defense Requirements Stimulate Development of Resources

Toronto, November 28.—Mr. L. K. Johnston, President of Imperial Bank of Canada, speaking at the Bank's 77th Annual Meeting pointed out that Canada is presently in a period of great expansion.

Commenting further on this subject, Mr. Johnston said in part:

To turn to domestic developments we are now in one of our greatest periods of expansion. The amount of capital being devoted to resource development, to the creation of industrial plant and equipment, to the production of power-generating capacity and transportation equipment, to the development of our oil resources, to agriculture and housing is truly phenomenal. These expenditures account for more than 20 per cent of the gross national expenditure.

Canada's defense production program is now adding its quota to these vast claims on our current production. At first its main effect was to stimulate new private expenditures on plant and equipment on inventories and on consumer goods. Now the income created by rising employment in defense industries is being added to the income stream.

The production capacity for arms manufacture comes from different sources. In part it is provided by the expansion of existing facilities in the first seven months of 1951 the index of industrial production averaged 12 per cent above the comparable period in 1950.

In part the greater supply of materials required has come from imports, which are 25 per cent higher in volume in the first six months of 1951 than in 1950. To a growing extent, however, we must rely on a diversion of production capacity from civilian to defense purposes. In the United States where defense production is very large and capital expenditures, excluding residential construction, is being maintained, consumer durable goods production is sharply down.

Our Growing Production Potential
In the longer period our defense requirements may quite possibly be more largely met out of a growing Canadian output of goods and services. Several factors will bring about this expansion of output. Our labour force expands by over one per cent each year from natural increase, and immigration, which may reach 150,000 this year, will add a like amount. Our capital equipment has expanded enormously in the last five years and continues to grow. While our information is not adequate to make a firm estimate it appears that manufacturing facilities, for instance, may have increased by more than 40 per cent from 1946 to the present. In agriculture the great mechanization of the post-war years has permitted a rise in output despite a decline in the farm working force. Substantial additions have been made, and are being made, to our usable resources. Some of these are already bearing fruit. Alberta oil for the first time is being used in large amounts in Canada. Under a carefully designed development plan and with continuing enterprise on the part of our producers new pools are being discovered, new wells being drilled, new transportation facilities built and new processing plants constructed. Likewise the output of mine and forest, which provide so much of the materials of our production, whether they be copper, nickel, asbestos, or gold, wool, pulp or newsprint, continues to grow.

Assets and Deposits Reach All-Time High
Toronto, November 28.—Commenting on the Seventy-seventh Annual Statement of Imperial Bank at the Annual Meeting of Shareholders to-day, Mr. L. S. Mackersy, General Manager, said in part:

The Seventy-seventh Annual Statement of the Bank now before you shows total assets of $535,006,041, the highest figure so far in our history, the increase over last year being $8,857,000.

Deposits
Deposits at $184,742,046, showing an increase of $6,991,000, are again at an all-time high. Non-interest bearing deposits increased $8,000,000, interest-bearing deposits increased $6,152,000, a total increase of $14,643,000, but Government of Canada deposits decreased $168,000, and Provincial deposits decreased $7,481,000, a total of $7,649,000. We note with a great deal of satisfaction that deposits by the public continue to show a substantial gain.

Investments
Investments, not exceeding market value, total $196,768,301, a decrease of $23,998,000. Short-term Government of Canada Securities increased by $2,797,000, but long-term Government of Canada decreased $21,741,000, a net decrease of slightly less than $19,000,000. Provincial and Municipal Government Securities decreased $1,569,000, and Other Bonds decreased $191,000. We do not hold any Public Securities (other than Canadian) as against a holding of $1,051,000 last year. We could not provide a portfolio of readily marketable securities to be ample for all needs.

Profits
The profits, before provision for depreciation and taxes, were $2,802,000, showing an increase of $211,092. Out of this amount we have provided for depreciation of $175,000, slightly less than last year, and Government of Canada and Provincial taxes of $1,150,000, which increased $11,384,000, out of which dividends at the rate of $1.30 per share amounting to $480,000 were paid and provision for payment of a dividend of 20c per share totalling $140,000 was made leaving a balance of $256,000. From this amount we have written $150,000 off Bank Premises Account leaving $106,000 to be added to Profit and Loss Account, making a balance of $2,075,745. From this balance we have transferred $1,000,000 to Reserve Fund which now amounts to $11,000,000, and have carried forward a balance of $1,075,745. We trust you will consider this showing satisfactory.

Export Prospects
As American defense production grows Canada's exports to the United States should continue to grow also. American use of our newspaper should increase as our production increases. Base metals are everywhere already in short supply. Our lumber sales to the United States have been well-maintained this year despite the de-

price stability in the United States
In the United States, our most important customer, a very high level of economic activity is being maintained while great shifts in the

Dollar Scarcity Again
Before dealing with domestic matters however I should like to comment briefly on the main economic developments in those countries with whom our trade is large. Last year I noted that the problem of dollar scarcity had been greatly eased partly owing to the defense spending of the United States. Unfortunately, as it seemed possible then, the improvement has not been sustained. Up to the end of the second quarter of 1951 the growth in the dollar balances of the sterling area countries had been in the third quarter this trend was sharply reversed; the sterling area's dollar balances declined by about $600 million. This situation is the result of a much sharper rise in the value of sterling area imports from the dollar countries than in the value of its exports thereto. The growing defense spending in the United Kingdom is responsible for part of the increase of sterling area imports. At the same time it was necessary to rebuild inventories of raw materials which had been depleted. And more oil has now to be paid for in dollars owing to the loss of Iranian supplies. The smaller expansion in exports is partly caused by increased costs in the United Kingdom. To some extent this may be due to domestic absorption of goods previously exported. Further, to restrain their domestic demands dollar countries have imposed taxes and restricted credit thus making all sales more difficult including sales of British goods as for instance, sales of British cars in Canada.

While the dollar situation has thus deteriorated recently one should not draw conclusions about the future too hastily. The fact remains that production in Western Europe continues to rise. The Iranian situation may yet be settled so that oil flows to Britain once more. A rightening supply situation in the United States may cut dollar exports and increasing U.S. and Canadian defense spending on the European continent will increase world dollar supplies. Nevertheless Britain continues to suffer from the lack of overseas investment income lost during the second world war. Overseas holders of sterling balances still are able to use them only to purchase British goods. Such exports earn no dollars. Other goods which might have been exported have been attracted to the home market by a rising domestic demand. Whatever the long-run impact of these various tendencies, there is little doubt that renewed dollar scarcity will seriously delay the removal of trade and exchange restrictions now imposed by non-dollar countries. It may thus retard the restoration of our exports overseas.

Price Stability in the United States
In the United States, our most important customer, a very high level of economic activity is being maintained while great shifts in the

The resulting benefits in improved service and working conditions are shared both by our customers and our staff.

Shareholders and Branches
Our shareholders now number 1,297, an increase of 91 for the past year. 225 of our shareholders are residing in the United States which is four less than last year.

We opened ten new branches during the year, one of which was a sub-branch. Two sub-branches were closed, and one sub-branch was placed on a full-time basis. Including 7 sub-branches we now have 224 branches located in the following Provinces: Alberta—30, British Columbia—18, Manitoba—8, North West Territories—1, Nova Scotia—1, Ontario—111, Quebec—10, Saskatchewan—25.

Staff
During the year our staff increased 259 and now numbers 2,945 of which 1,491 are young ladies, their number at present being in excess of 50%.

Attention has been given to the development of our staff training facilities and emphasis placed on the improvement of our service to the general public. Our continued expansion offers many opportunities for promotion to young men willing to devote their talents and energy to the service of the Bank. We have many examples to illustrate the promising future awaiting young men in the service of the Bank. In addition, we would be doing any young man a service in bringing these facts to his attention, as well as furthering the interests of the Bank. I welcome this opportunity to commend the efficiency and conscientious hard work of the members of the staff who have made possible the results shown by the Statement. I am proud of our staff and thank them for their loyalty and devotion to duty during the past year.

Defense Requirements Stimulate Development of Resources

Toronto, November 28.—Mr. L. K. Johnston, President of Imperial Bank of Canada, speaking at the Bank's 77th Annual Meeting pointed out that Canada is presently in a period of great expansion.

Commenting further on this subject, Mr. Johnston said in part:

To turn to domestic developments we are now in one of our greatest periods of expansion. The amount of capital being devoted to resource development, to the creation of industrial plant and equipment, to the production of power-generating capacity and transportation equipment, to the development of our oil resources, to agriculture and housing is truly phenomenal. These expenditures account for more than 20 per cent of the gross national expenditure.

Canada's defense production program is now adding its quota to these vast claims on our current production. At first its main effect was to stimulate new private expenditures on plant and equipment on inventories and on consumer goods. Now the income created by rising employment in defense industries is being added to the income stream.

The production capacity for arms manufacture comes from different sources. In part it is provided by the expansion of existing facilities in the first seven months of 1951 the index of industrial production averaged 12 per cent above the comparable period in 1950.

In part the greater supply of materials required has come from imports, which are 25 per cent higher in volume in the first six months of 1951 than in 1950. To a growing extent, however, we must rely on a diversion of production capacity from civilian to defense purposes. In the United States where defense production is very large and capital expenditures, excluding residential construction, is being maintained, consumer durable goods production is sharply down.

Our Growing Production Potential
In the longer period our defense requirements may quite possibly be more largely met out of a growing Canadian output of goods and services. Several factors will bring about this expansion of output. Our labour force expands by over one per cent each year from natural increase, and immigration, which may reach 150,000 this year, will add a like amount. Our capital equipment has expanded enormously in the last five years and continues to grow. While our information is not adequate to make a firm estimate it appears that manufacturing facilities, for instance, may have increased by more than 40 per cent from 1946 to the present. In agriculture the great mechanization of the post-war years has permitted a rise in output despite a decline in the farm working force. Substantial additions have been made, and are being made, to our usable resources. Some of these are already bearing fruit. Alberta oil for the first time is being used in large amounts in Canada. Under a carefully designed development plan and with continuing enterprise on the part of our producers new pools are being discovered, new wells being drilled, new transportation facilities built and new processing plants constructed. Likewise the output of mine and forest, which provide so much of the materials of our production, whether they be copper, nickel, asbestos, or gold, wool, pulp or newsprint, continues to grow.

Assets and Deposits Reach All-Time High
Toronto, November 28.—Commenting on the Seventy-seventh Annual Statement of Imperial Bank at the Annual Meeting of Shareholders to-day, Mr. L. S. Mackersy, General Manager, said in part:

The Seventy-seventh Annual Statement of the Bank now before you shows total assets of $535,006,041, the highest figure so far in our history, the increase over last year being $8,857,000.

Deposits
Deposits at $184,742,046, showing an increase of $6,991,000, are again at an all-time high. Non-interest bearing deposits increased $8,000,000, interest-bearing deposits increased $6,152,000, a total increase of $14,643,000, but Government of Canada deposits decreased $168,000, and Provincial deposits decreased $7,481,000, a total of $7,649,000. We note with a great deal of satisfaction that deposits by the public continue to show a substantial gain.

Investments
Investments, not exceeding market value, total $196,768,301, a decrease of $23,998,000. Short-term Government of Canada Securities increased by $2,797,000, but long-term Government of Canada decreased $21,741,000, a net decrease of slightly less than $19,000,000. Provincial and Municipal Government Securities decreased $1,569,000, and Other Bonds decreased $191,000. We do not hold any Public Securities (other than Canadian) as against a holding of $1,051,000 last year. We could not provide a portfolio of readily marketable securities to be ample for all needs.

Profits
The profits, before provision for depreciation and taxes, were $2,802,000, showing an increase of $211,092. Out of this amount we have provided for depreciation of $175,000, slightly less than last year, and Government of Canada and Provincial taxes of $1,150,000, which increased $11,384,000, out of which dividends at the rate of $1.30 per share amounting to $480,000 were paid and provision for payment of a dividend of 20c per share totalling $140,000 was made leaving a balance of $256,000. From this amount we have written $150,000 off Bank Premises Account leaving $106,000 to be added to Profit and Loss Account, making a balance of $2,075,745. From this balance we have transferred $1,000,000 to Reserve Fund which now amounts to $11,000,000, and have carried forward a balance of $1,075,745. We trust you will consider this showing satisfactory.

Export Prospects
As American defense production grows Canada's exports to the United States should continue to grow also. American use of our newspaper should increase as our production increases. Base metals are everywhere already in short supply. Our lumber sales to the United States have been well-maintained this year despite the de-

price stability in the United States

Dollar Scarcity Again
Before dealing with domestic matters however I should like to comment briefly on the main economic developments in those countries with whom our trade is large. Last year I noted that the problem of dollar scarcity had been greatly eased partly owing to the defense spending of the United States. Unfortunately, as it seemed possible then, the improvement has not been sustained. Up to the end of the second quarter of 1951 the growth in the dollar balances of the sterling area countries had been in the third quarter this trend was sharply reversed; the sterling area's dollar balances declined by about $600 million. This situation is the result of a much sharper rise in the value of sterling area imports from the dollar countries than in the value of its exports thereto. The growing defense spending in the United Kingdom is responsible for part of the increase of sterling area imports. At the same time it was necessary to rebuild inventories of raw materials which had been depleted. And more oil has now to be paid for in dollars owing to the loss of Iranian supplies. The smaller expansion in exports is partly caused by increased costs in the United Kingdom. To some extent this may be due to domestic absorption of goods previously exported. Further, to restrain their domestic demands dollar countries have imposed taxes and restricted credit thus making all sales more difficult including sales of British goods as for instance, sales of British cars in Canada.

While the dollar situation has thus deteriorated recently one should not draw conclusions about the future too hastily. The fact remains that production in Western Europe continues to rise. The Iranian situation may yet be settled so that oil flows to Britain once more. A rightening supply situation in the United States may cut dollar exports and increasing U.S. and Canadian defense spending on the European continent will increase world dollar supplies. Nevertheless Britain continues to suffer from the lack of overseas investment income lost during the second world war. Overseas holders of sterling balances still are able to use them only to purchase British goods. Such exports earn no dollars. Other goods which might have been exported have been attracted to the home market by a rising domestic demand. Whatever the long-run impact of these various tendencies, there is little doubt that renewed dollar scarcity will seriously delay the removal of trade and exchange restrictions now imposed by non-dollar countries. It may thus retard the restoration of our exports overseas.

Horse Betting Up $7,000,000 in '51

OTTAWA, Nov. 29 (CP)—Horse racing enthusiasts have bet a total of $7,000,000 on the races during the year ending Oct. 31, 1951, according to figures released today by the Canadian Horse Racing Association.

The total bet was up from $6,000,000 in 1950, and the increase was due to a number of factors, including the fact that the racing season was longer than in previous years.

The association also reported that the average bet per person was $14.29, compared with $12.50 in 1950.

More than half of the bets were placed on the races at the Victoria track, which is the most popular track in the province.

"Hot flashes" of Change of Life stopped or strikingly relieved in doctors' tests!

There are many women who suffer from "hot flashes" or "change of life" during the years between 40 and 50. These flashes are often accompanied by a feeling of heat, a rapid heartbeat, and a sense of uneasiness. They can be very distressing and interfere with daily life.

Dr. Lydia Pinkham, a leading authority on women's health, has found that her Pinkham's Compound can effectively relieve these symptoms. In her tests, she found that the compound works by restoring the natural balance of the body and reducing the effects of the change of life.

Dr. Pinkham's Compound is a natural remedy made from the roots of the Pinkham's Compound plant. It has been used for many years and has a long record of success. It is available in many drug stores and health food stores.

For more information, write to Dr. Lydia Pinkham, 233 Central Expressway, Lynn, Massachusetts.

Shoppers Clutching Purse-Strings; Merchants Stock Shelves Timidly

By The Canadian Press

Shoppers are clutching their purse-strings and merchants are stocking their shelves timidly, according to a survey made by the Canadian Press.

The survey, which was conducted in several cities, found that consumers are being very cautious in their spending habits. They are buying only what they need and are not buying on impulse.

Merchants are also being cautious. They are not buying as much stock as they did a few months ago. They are waiting to see what the market will do before they commit themselves.

Blood Pledge--No Cash--At Box Office Price for Big Pint Parade Show

Blood pledges, not cash, will be taken at the Odeon Theatre box office December 9, for admission to the Red Cross Pint Parade—a fast-moving professional stage show.

To spur response to their plea for blood, Red Cross authorities approached city radio station C.V.I., Odeon Theatre manager Elliot Brown, and professional entertainers.

All agreed to donate their services free of charge, and plans for the Pint Parade took shape. Those who pledge a pint of blood will see a 2½-hour show headed by Bernie Porter's augmented orchestra.

C.V.I. announcers Hugh Curtis and Ray Orchard will be masters of ceremonies. Highlight of the production will be a presentation of certificates to four Victorians who have donated more than 20 pints of blood.

Dec. 10 has been declared Youth Day at Red Cross House, 1016 Fort, and all donors will be between the ages of 18 and 25.

The Pint Parade is under the patronage of Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Clarence Wallace.
